Brick Cleaning Machine.

Mr. T. M. Schleier, of this city, the inventor and patentee of the above named machine, has been for some time in Boston, superintending the construction and trial of one of the machines. His many friends here will be pleased to hear of his complete success. We copy the following from the Boston Daily Advertiser:

"The expense of brick cleaning with a hatchet the millions of bricks in the burnt district is an important item in the expense of rebuilding. It is moreover a slow and vexatious process. A machine that will do the work well and expeditiously and cheaply too is something that is to be desired. Mr. T. M. Schleier of Knoxville, Tennessee, has lately patented an invention for this purpose, and one of his ma-chines has been built at the shop of Welsh & Chipman, in First street, South Boston. The bricks are carried on an apron to a hopper into which they are fed one by one, falling end first. A descending bar pushes the brick through a narrow way surrounded on each side by steel chisels pressed against it by springs, which clean the mortar from the four long sides at once. As soon as it has passed through, a horizontal bar pushes it through another set of chisels which clean the ends, and it drops out ready for use. The springs adjust the chisels to the various thicknesses of bricks. Bats are cleaned, except on the ends, as readily as whole bricks. The chisels are so set as to keep themselves ground. The machine is so powerful that an extra thick brick will have a shaving fifty-five cents. scraped off without stopping it, and so Demorest's Monthly stands unsivaled as a easily run that the work can be done by family magazine. Its choice literature, its suhand, although the use of power is contemplated. Another advantage is that bricks which would inevitably be broken claim to its well-earned title, "the Model Magaby a blow on the side are preserved whole. Running at a slow rate, the bricks are eleaned at the rate of 35 or 40 a minute, which is about as fast as they can be placed in position. We believe the inventor prothan hatchet cleaned ones."

THE MISSING MAN.

The Body of Robert Hook Found in First Creek.

On yesterday afternoon about five o'clock the body of Robert Hook, who has been missing since Saturday night, was discovered by Charles Ballard, a colored man who lives near the creek. His attention was called to it by Mrs. Horrigan, who, seeing the body floating, thought it was that of a child, and so stated.

Ballard at once waded out into the stream, and, seizing the corpse, with considerable difficulty brought it ashore, the current being very swift and the creek much swollen. The deceased was found a short distance above the brick mill and bore the marks of violence on his person, consisting of a severe gash on his forehead and a small round hole in his left temple, resembling a bullet hole; his neck also seemed to have been broken, which was probably done when his body was thrown into the creek by his murderer, for that he was foully dealt with there is good reason to believe, judging by the nature of his wounds. Ballard at once reported the discovery of the body to J. P. Alley, Esq., coroner, who repaired to the creek and held an inquest over the remains. The following persons composed the jury: Henry Davis, R. H. Brown, James D'Armond, Alex. Warters, Louis Rucker, Clinton Monday and Henry

The jury reserved their decision until to-day, the body, in the meantime being ated. eastern suburbs of the city.

The deceased was a carpenter by trade and had been living in Knoxville about seventeen or eighteen years. Unfortunately he was addicted to drink and last Saturday night while at the Market House with his wife, went away, telling her he would be back in a few minutes and to await his return. She remained until the Market House closed and then went home alone, hoping that he had gone on before. Hook was seen about 9 o'clock that night in a saloon, where he paid for a drink for a notoriously mean negro. Both left about the samo time and it is thought his life was taken in order to obtain the small have in his possession when he paid for the liquor.
